| January
10 | Theodore Jacobs, MD
The Analyst as a Therapeutic Agent: The Use of Counter-Transference in Analytic Treatment
I will review the concept of counter-transference and discuss its role in the therapeutic action of psychoanalysis.
Dr. Jacobs is a Training/Supervising Analyst on the NYUPI Faculty, and a Clinical Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
| January
24 | Herbert Stein, MD Understanding Unconscious Fantasy Through Film: "The Lives of Others"
I will show film clips to illustrate the topic of fantasy; you don't have to have seen the film to be part of the conversation. Dr. Stein is a member of the NYUPI Faculty, and a Clinical Assistant Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
| February
7 | Donald Moss, MD The "Other"- Some Clinical, Social and Political Considerations
I will talk about the construction of "otherness" in the minds of patients and analysts in clinical work and in the material world, and explore how psychoanalytic thinking contributes to our understanding of this phenomenon.
Dr. Moss is a faculty member of NYU PI, and a Clinical Assistant Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
| February
28 | Rajiv Gulati, MD About Dreams : What Use Can We Make of Them?
Using a clinical vignette I will talk about how dreams can be useful in understanding and accessing deeper affects and fantasies in a treatment.
Dr. Gulati is a member of the NYUPI Faculty, and a Clinical Assistant Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
| March
14 | Francoise Graf, PhD What About the Couch?
This important symbol of psychoanalytic treatment, so frequently used in cartoons and jokes, evokes all sorts of feelings in the public at large, but even more so at the beginning of treatment. I will explore this topic with illustrations of clinical vignettes. Dr. Graf is a Senior Candidate in the Adult Psychoanalytic Training Program. |
| March
28 | Shelley Orgel, MD When Analysis Makes Patients Worse Instead of Better
I will briefly outline theories of "Negative Therapeutic Action" developed to explain why some patients respond to analytic work by a worsening of their symptoms, with painful affects and apparent deterioration in their functioning. Clinical illustrations will be offered. Dr. Orgel is a Training/Supervising Analyst on the NYUPI Faculty and a Clinical Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
| April
18 | Jennifer Stuart, PhD Work and Motherhood: A Psychoanalytic Study
I will use clinical research interview material to show how a psychoanalytic perspective can help us understand the common experience of conflict between motherhood and career.
Dr. Stuart is a member of the NYUPI Faculty and a Clinical Associate Professor in Psychiatry, NYU-LMC. |
